Rabinoff’s Visit College Campus
Two former musicians visited the college campus last week as Bonnie and Sylvia Rabinoff performed at an all college assembly last Friday.

The Rabinoffs arrived at the college campus Thursday and were honored at dinner in the hall of the Bruce Carter Student Union.

During the dinner the Rabinoffs were entertained by a chorus of the Nebraska A&M chorus and a piano solo by Joyce Rieker. While in Miami the musicians stayed at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Bruce G. Carter.

Rabinoff is considered one of the outstanding musicians of his time. One of his outstanding achievements was when, at the age of six years, he gave his first concert.

When asked about his career, Rabinoff stated that many people consider him to be a prodigy, but that they are greatly mistaken. When asked to describe his performance, Rabinoff said that he was a normal student in high school, but that he was interested in music and planned a career in that field.

When asked whether college students should pursue music as a career, Rabinoff stated that he believes it is important to have a musical education.

Faculty Answers Students Questions

To promote interest in government, The Norse Wind has asked students to send questions they might have to The Norse Wind office. The following questions have been submitted and answered by Northeastern A&M faculty members. If you have any question that you want to submit, please feel free to do so.

The first question submitted was, "How would you explain the Russian motivation for infiltration into the economic systems of such African nations as Guinea and Ghana, and how successful are they?"

The following answer was submitted by Northeastern A&M Dean, Dr. C. C. Ferreze: "Russian motivation is the same in these areas as it is in any area of the world. The only thing different would be the method of infiltration. Underdeveloped nations certainly would not be the target of a highly developed country such as Canada, Australia, and the United States. Actually, the motivation for the Soviets is exactly as explained in Karl Marx's "Communist Manifesto"; that is, a classless society. But now, instead of being an ideal state—ones enforced by an oligarchy; therefore, I would have to say that the Russian motivation for the infiltration in any economic system is one of dominance.

"We will have to wait several years perhaps to find out how successful they are; however, recent developments in the United Nations indicate that the Russians are quite successful, and continued Russian (Communist Bloc) successes aided by one or two mistakes on the part of the National Government of the United States could deliver these newly formed countries into the Communist voting bloc of the United Nations. If this is achieved, the United States will have to invest in the vets in the Security Council—a practice that has been reserved so far for the Soviets."

The second question submitted was, "If the U.S. decided to attack the Soviet Union instead of waiting for Russia to continue its policy of foreign intervention, would the American Air Forces have a better chance of success than they would in five years if the U.S.S.R. attacked us?"

The following answer was submitted by Captain Rodney E. Biff, of the Air Science department: "First, let us make it clear that the United States never intends to be the aggressor nation. My basis for that is President Kennedy's State of the Union message, delivered 30 January, 1961. But, to answer the question—The United States military posture today has enough power in being to completely annihilate Russia, were it given the chance to attack first.

"It is axiomatic, in war, that the advantage lies with the aggressor, so that were we to attack today, tomorrow, or in five years, the advantage would lie with us. In forecasting our military strength five years hence I would personally have to make the observation that the United States will have a decided military advantage over Russia, because we feel that in five years we will have the facilities to observe any surprise attack Russia might be capable of launching. We would do this with our newly developed satellites, such as MIDAS and SABRE, which should and will detect any ICMB launched by the Russians. It is interesting to note that the Russians have neglected this field, and there is a very good reason. They are completely aware that we do not intend to be the aggressor nation. Therefore, they have no need for an elaborate warning system such as we possess and intend to greatly improve."

ACCOMPLISHMENTS ARE COMMON FOR FRESHMAN HOMEMAKER

By MELBA SEATON

When college students make the Dean’s honor roll or are selected to Phi Theta Kappa they should certainly be congratulated. But when a student can accomplish this in addition to carrying 18 hours, holding two jobs on the campus, and doing all other university duties, she is particularly outstanding student.

Donalene Eads, freshman at Northwestern A&M because of her outstanding accomplishments was selected for Phi Theta Kappa. She is a member of the Home Economics department according to Mrs. Harry Symar, college instructor in Home Economics.

Miss Eads decided to attend the Home Economics department because of the facilities Home Economics then offered. Her major was in home economics and by the Home Economics department. She is also carrying 18 hours this semester.

Miss Eads feels that a course in home economics would be valuable to every girl regardless of her major. “It is valuable to every girl, single or married, because we all must take care of our homes,” states Miss Eads.

Miss Eads plans to complete her courses in two years and then transfer to Oklahoma State University in one year for graduate work in educational administration.
