College Credit Offered

Seminars Discuss Marriage

The weekly seminars concerning significant aspects of marriage will begin Feb-uary 23, at 7:30 p.m. in the union student ballrooms.

One college credit, for a fee of eight dollars, will be offered to all interested students. The seminars will be free to students earning credit.

There are six seminars but students will only have to come to five to gain credit. Michael Opdalnik will be in charge of the seminars awarding credit.

The seminars will be held every Monday night for six weeks, excluding the week of spring break, according to Master Edward, director of Child Care Services Department. The seminars are open to everyone.

"I'd like to see some high school students come to these seminars," said Mrs. Edward. "The seminars would be good for people even if they didn't have a girlfriend or boyfriend, mainly because even young people need to understand how to work with other people. Also, people and divorced men and women came last year and enjoyed the sessions enormously."

"The marriage seminars are being held because people are worried about marriage." Students have noticed that their parents aren't so happy anymore, commented Mrs. Edward. "Students are more aware of what's going on and they're concerned about what marriage means."

We've been taught on television and radio that it's all right. It's one more step in growing up, where everyone lives happily ever after."

"Also about a year or marriage you realize that you had a completely wrong idea about marriage. When you realize this, it blows you. By coming to these seminars you can find out just what's going on," stated Mrs. Edward.

Speakers being invited for the seminars Topics to be discussed are: "Competency Readings for Marriage," "Adapting to Life After Marriage," "Money and Marriage: How Much is Enough.
The speakers for the seminars are chosen because they are good, experts in their field and discussion area. They are prepared for questions from the audience, said Mrs. Edward. After each seminar over thirty people are available to talk with students who wish to discuss personal problems.

Sponsoring the seminars are the following NEO organizations: Child Care Services Department; New Campus Ministry; Home Economics Club; Northeastern Association of Under Students; Student Nurse Association and the Student Council.

Speaker for the first seminar is Helen Clevenson, director of the University," said Mrs. Edward. "There will be two seminars, one on Monday night and one on Tuesday night." The dates will be announced when confirmed.

Other speakers are: Ted Levens, Kent Jacob, John Clayton, Dr. Pat Murphy, and Dr. Robert Noble.

Job Placement Offered To Summer Workers

Students are reminded that now is the time to start making a letter of application for a full-time or a part-time job for the coming summer.

An ad in the Daily Collegian by Placement Director at Northeastern A&M. "Most students do not realize that at the beginning of the year they are in peak application mode," according to the Placement Office. "The students who are doing their fifteen hours are beginning to realize the benefits of doing this."

The problems with college students finding employment is that they do not realize that applications must be submitted early to avoid the spring rush." So students need to know the proper way in which to find a job.

The main purpose and aim of the Placement Office is to have students know how, and where to apply for a job. The Placement Office has many other services available for students.

The programs available are: Summer employment programs, part-time employment, personal service, full-time employment opportunities, and the Student Placement Office. The students can apply to one or more of these programs.

In the full-time employment program services are provided mainly for the seasonal students who are looking for full-time employment in business, industry or government. One of the services of the program is a resume service. The Placement Office will cut and type a personal resume for students seeking full-time employment at no cost. If the students need copies, there is a printing fee of $1.50 for 25 copies.

The summer employment program's purpose will be to furnish information about how to write a letter of application and make sure it is correct. There are also many vacancy announcements sent to the Placement Office for students to know about the job openings. These announcements are available from local chambers of commerce in many towns across the state, the Summer Employment Service, and the Directory of Commonwealth Summer Jobs. Also the directory of Manufacturers and Industrial Newspapers. These are designed for the students to come in and look through and get a feeling about job opportunities.

The Student Placement Office is located on the second floor of the Library Administration and is available by the college as a service to the NEO students.

Musical Rehearsals End

Rehearsals are coming to an end for Northeastern A&M's musical productions. The Oklahoma!" staff opened February 25 and closed through February 29, according to Sheryl White, director.

"Again I would like to mention the fact that February 25 was to be set aside for Northeastern A&M students to attend the performances," stated White. "No outside guests will be allowed to attend this special showing. Students will be admitted free upon presentation of their ID card. This does not mean that Northeastern students can not attend any of the other scheduled performances. They can choose to attend these performances for the scheduled performance or on or after February 19. All performances begin at 8:00 p.m. except the February 29 performance which begins at 7:00 p.m. in the Fine Arts Center.

Choral Music Festival Held

Northwestern A&M will host a spring festival for high school choirs from several schools. February 19, at the annual Choral Music Festival.

4,500 students from Kansas, Arkansas, Missouri, and Oklahoma will participate in the annual event, according to Kenneth Comer, director of the choral festival.

Judges for senior high competition will include: Dr. Norman Fish, Oklahoma State University, mixed chorus; Marion White, Grinnell College, mixed choir; Dr. Coleman Smith, Central State University, girls glee club and mixed chorus; Robert Ashby, OKU, mixed choir; and John Spach, Oklahoma State University, mixed choir.

Selecting outstanding performances in the senior high competition will be: John Rogers, Chancellor High School, Marion Richards, Miami, Oklahoma, Dr. Joe Steiner, Missouri Southern State College, ensemble and soloists; and Sammy Beck, Joplin, soloist.

Area Students Attend NEO Band Festival

Approximately 1,000 senior high school students will participate in the 23rd annual Instrumental Music Festival, February 19, hosted by Northwestern A&M. Students from 62 high schools in the four-state area have been invited to attend the event held on the NEO campus, according to Dr. Robert Seaman, director of the festival.

Judges, their institution, and the division they will judge include: Edith Johnson, Arkansas University, Concert band; David Buchanan, Kansas University, Concert band; Eddie Kennard, Oklahoma University, stage band; Dr. David Eichberger, Oklahoma University, windband; Jack Lott, NEO windband; Robert Bright, Arkansas University, percussion and brass; Richard Oller, Kansas University, brass solo; Don Clouse, Missouri College, brass solo; and Michael Forness, windband.

"This is the first time that tinsel is a part of our competition," commented Dr. Seaman.

This year's competition is scheduled for spring high students, March 23, to be held on the NEO campus.
Parole Elimination Proposed By Levi

A news story released in the Globe World Feb. 3 stated that U.S. Attorney General Edward Levi had proposed abolishing the federal parole board and jailing criminals for their full sentences with time off only for good behavior.

Levi asserted that consideration of such a plan, "is an important and necessary first step" toward reform which could deter crime and provide the public with a specific amount of time off for good behavior.

The plan is consistent with President Ford's call for legislation establishing mandatory minimum prison sentences for certain violent crimes and for repeat offenders.

In Levi's opinion, existing laws have failed to deter crime and have contributed to "perceived injustice.

noting that more prisoners become eligible for parole after serving one-third or less of their sentence. Levi said this situation "may increase the lack of credibility in sentencing which undermines the deterrent effect of criminal law and adds to a sense of unfairness.

This new proposition would be extremely effective in cases concerning hardened criminals. For instance, the situation of mass murderer, Charles Manson. Even before he masterminded the Sharon Tate and Leno Laflanca murders in 1969, Manson spent most of his life in penal institutions. His formative years were lived in juvenile delinquent centers and reform schools.

In many cases, Manson, going before the parole board, "would put on an act" to convince the members that he had reformed and could adjust to the society outside the prison walls. In actuality, he could not have been made to see it.

Charles Manson, convicted in 1972 for the Tate and Laflanca murders - a hardened criminal sentenced to die in the gas chamber (saved from that fate by the abolition of the death penalty, reducing the penalty to life imprisonment) - is eligible for parole in 1978. Any person who seeks to release a man such as this on parole should be in an institution himself.

Obviously, the penal code needs to be reformed. Especially when it is possible for a deserving mass murderer who would not hesitate to request his release to walk away after serving only a short time. But what about the lesser criminals?

Take the case of a person serving a prison sentence for possession of marijuana. Usually, the sentence is unreasonable long anyway and a parole is warranted after a certain period of time. Under Levi's proposed plan, this person would be freed after maybe five years for "smoking a joint" or "selling a bit" or perhaps just having some marijuana on his person. However, in some cases possession of marijuana has already been reduced to nothing more than a misdemeanor, sometimes resulting only in a fine of not more than $100.

Undoubtedly, Levi's plan is applicable in circumstances relating to hardened criminals such as Manson. His plan "could end the uncertainty of a prisoner nor knowing what he must do to please the parole board by setting a specific range of prison terms which could be imposed for each crime. In most cases, judges would have to impose a sentence within the prescribed range.

The offender would be required to serve the sentence imposed by the judge, with a specific amount of time off for good behavior.

If this proposal becomes law, let's hope that it is most severe on prisoners such as Charles Manson, who don't deserve a parole. As for the ones who have considerably lesser crimes and are not repeat offenders, they are entitled to breathing room and a second chance.
Students Find 'Ranch' Popular Night Spot

"It’s go to the Ranch!"
Every Wednesday, Friday or Saturday night, there’s no better place to hang out for the campus of Northeastern A&M. Not only NDEA students, but people from Jepson, Calvillie, and Crowder also flock to the Ranch.

What is the Ranch? The Ranch is a night club for the college community, about 35 miles from Miami. For all but six or a few hours, the Ranch offers affordable entertainment for extracurricular purposes.

Along with a fine band, the Ranch also offers a large dance floor, pool, and bar. The price is $3.65 per person for the evening.

"We have everything for the college," says Skip Hopp, general manager. "About 90 percent of our customers are college students, or college friends of students. We always work at the Ranch as much as we can, even after the present season. Kenny Woodall, the band director for the college, often has his students have a few drinks before they go to the Ranch. We have a handful of groups from Texas, California, and Georgia.

Ranch Productions, a company formed out of the Ranch, has already produced music for students. We have also had music for the college, and we are proud of what we have done.

"We’re always trying to get the best bands in the area. We’ve also featured bands from Texas, California, and Georgia.

"The night we did the RTO concert in the Ranch, the crowd was huge. Two months later they had an album in the top ten, and were charging $50.00 a night. We were happy to catch them on their way up," Skip explained.

DANGEROUS PRANK—While the setting of fires in dormitory trash areas may seem like a joke, Miami Fire Chief Horst has warned that the fire presents a danger to residents from smoke inhalation. Many plastics, when burned, according to Horst, give off poisonous gases.

Trash Chute Fires Potential Killer

Even though many of the trash chutes are equipped with automatic sprinklers, "none of them work, while others don’t," according to Vermont young, house director.

"On many of the sprinklers the covering for the camer is not properly maintained," continued Young. The administration does not have funds to fix the problem.

Fire Chief J.R. Haasle added that fires in the college can be a danger not only to students but to the entire city.

"Anytime we go to the college, we empty both fire stations. So if there’s a fire anywhere on campus, there’s almost enough to handle it," he stated.

"There’s no telling what might happen while we’re not looking out toward the college. There could be a major fire in the business district, or someone trapped in a burning house. There’s no telling whose life might be in danger," said Haasle.

Chief Horst explained that when both fire stations are empty (as in the case of fire in the college), a person reporting a fire has to call the police station, which in turn has to call a patrol car to go to the scene and report the fire. This is time-consuming, and the fire may spread in the meantime.

Trash chutes are a potential source of fire, and the administration has been aware of this problem. However, the funds are not available to solve the problem.

Regardless of how the fire starts, let’s hope students don’t have to lose their lives to the fire. Until then, the students and administration realize that a real problem exists.

Sophomore Footballers Transfer To Universities

Eleven numbers of the 1975 North-umbria A-level squad have transferred to universities, according to the Herald, NED's head coach.

Transfers include James Harris, 6-4, 220, from Washington State University, quarterbacking a career-high 195 for 51 touchdown passes on a 12-3 record, with 12 touchdowns and 21 stumbles, while recovering 1 fumble.

Also going to Northwestern is defensive tackle Mark Hughes, 6-4, 230, speed the season switching on offense and defense.

Moving to Central Indiana university is 6-2, 210-pound receiver Larry Morris. Harris came to NED in 1973, since then two years in the service, before returning to NED. He compiled 57 tackles in the tossing game.

The 6-4, 210-pound defensive and Jim Dickerson from Houston, TX, transferred to the University of Houston, Dickinson. We also here in 1973. He had 36 tackles in his junior and 14 assists last year for the NED.

Transferring to North Carolina University was safety Dave Carey from Savannah, Georgia. Carey led the NED in rushing with 462 yards on 93 carries for a 4.9 rushing average. In passing, Carey caught 5 passes for 46 yards, and threw 3 pass completions for 52 yards.

Another tackle, John Ziegler, transferred to Cincinnati University. He was second in rushing with 435 yards on 73 carries for a 6.0 rushing avg. Ziegler also on the back of return team, returning kickoff for 174 yards and 31 avg.

Homecoming Thursday
Cage Season Winds Down

With only two and one-half weeks of the regular season remaining, Head Coach Chuck Siler, his fourth-ranked A&M Lady Bears, made plans to return to Oklahoma City to compete in the regular season finale against Big State Conference for Oklahoma City Standards. Time was set for 7:50 p.m.

The Eagles will be seeking to avenge an earlier season loss to Oklahoma City in the ONE Foundation. In that contest, led by forward Girls, Baier, Oklahoma City scored 22 points, leading 58-44, in the 1st half. Oklahoma City then went on to post a 61-56 victory over the Little Bears, as the Bears succumbed to the host team.

As we look ahead to the regular season finale against Big State Conference, the Lady Bears will be seeking to avenge their defeat against Oklahoma City. This will be the last game of the regular season for the Lady Bears, as they prepare to face the Oklahoma City Standards in the final contest.

Time-out

By Steve Buzzard
With only one good chance of winning, the Oklahoma City Standards, Big State Conference champs, Northern A&M's last five regular season basketball games are beginning to take on an air of total importance.

While the Bearcats are not exactly a "team," the game situation, with the team facing an Oklahoma City Standards game with points in the Mercer-Baker, Bears-Mercer, Bears-Baker, Baker-Merger, and Mercer-Baker games, could be a major factor in determining who gets two at-large berths in this year's tournament. As of March 4, the team leads the conference.

As always, the two teams will face off in a conference game with the top two teams in the conference. The winning team will face the team with the next NCCAA-level record, except for the team with the most recent record in NCCAA play.

The two remaining points in the tournament will be decided by a play-off, between the two best teams in the conference with the best NCCAA record. One of those teams, the team with the best NCCAA record will play at home against the team with the next NCCAA record. The team with the best NCCAA record will play at home against the team with the next NCCAA record. The team with the best NCCAA record will play at home against the team with the next NCCAA record.

Last year, the four teams played the Creve Coeur, Missouri, Northern A&M defeating Creve Coeur for one of the two at-large berths.

Another change from last year in the Mercer-Baker game, the Regents-Baker winner will automatically qualify for the National Championship, with the winner advancing to the National Tournament.

This year's National Tournament will be on Monday, March 8, at 11 a.m., in the same arena, in the conference.

In the Bi-State Conference, Carl Albert seems to have a solid team going to win the title. Undermax's three conference games, including a 57-58 over NCCAA, are expected to win the title. Lady Norse End Campaign Looking to Regional Event

Playing two consecutive games, the Lady Norse of Northern A&M have a shot at a highly successful 1977-78 NCCAA season.

Tomorrow afternoon, the ladies host the Missouri Southern College Lowans in the NCCAA fieldhouse. Tipoff for the contest is set for 2 p.m.

The Lady Norse defeated MSC earlier in the season 64-47 at Joplin, led by Diana Smith with 12 points. Missouri Southern was led in scoring by Cheryl Francis with 18, Karmen Graham with 13, and Back Lenox with 12.

Tipoffs for Head Coach Rose Wilson include Sharon Sammons and Beauty Rainwater at guard, Sudan and other guards in frontcourt, with Dallas Kirk at center.

The Lady Norse close out the regular season Feb. 17, hosting the Lady Spartans from Claremore Junior College. CCC; defeated Norse earlier in a regular season game, 72-66, and the Lady Norse hope to avenge that defeat.

In the loss at Claremore, Sharon Smith scored 18 points and Rose Wilson 17.

Other games in the region include Fort Scott at Central Oklahoma, Feb. 15, January 22, and Junior College, Feb. 17.

Three Vikings in double figures, and other Santa Ynez in frontcourt, with Dallas Kirk at center.

Faculty Group

Focus Start

Newly organized on campus is a Faculty Group at Oklahoma College and University System (FOCUS), a branch unit of the state group founded in September, 1975. The group was organized to promote and protect human and civil rights of students and faculty to improve conditions of professional employment of faculty, to develop and promote a professional community, to encourage and promote effective action for the university's welfare, and to serve as an effective forum for democratic decision-making between college faculties. Efforts of the new group will be centered around upgrading the climate on Oklahoma campuses to one that is more conductive to effective teaching, learning, and research. Meetings will be in faculty personnel in the governance and decision-making processes in Oklahoma institutions of higher education.

FOCUS membership during the organizational meeting in December was restricted only to faculty and professional librarians.

Herman Thomas, chairman of the FOCUS of the Northeastern A&M Student Senate, is president. He is also the state vice-president for legislation and will direct efforts toward passage of a Fair Dismissal Bill in the state legislature this spring. Other FOCUS officers are president-elect, Archibald, secretary,; J. C. Woodall, legislative chairman; chairman, Wesley G. Brawner, legislative chairman; and secretary, Virginia Wood, business secretary, and executive secretary. J. C. Woodall, legislative chairman; and secretary, Virginia Wood, business secretary, and executive secretary.
