Energy Use Studied

By STEVE FISHER
Managing Editor

With rising utility costs and the dwindling limited energy supply, Northeastern A&M is in the process of adopting an energy conservation program.

"We have developed an energy-conservation committee to deal with this," said Dr. J. W. Taylor, head of the committee.

According to Latrell, conservation will be the main focus of the committee's work. The committee will meet at least once a month to discuss issues and strategies related to energy conservation.

The committee has set several goals for the upcoming year:
- Reduce energy consumption in buildings and offices by 10%.
- Implement a comprehensive recycling program.
- Educate students, faculty, and staff about energy conservation practices.

On an individual level, students can contribute to energy conservation by:
- Turning off lights and equipment when not in use.
- Using energy-efficient appliances and electronics.
- Participating in the campus recycling program.
- Making use of public transportation and carpooling.

By implementing these strategies, Northeastern A&M can reduce its environmental impact and contribute to a sustainable future. The committee's efforts will continue to evolve as new ideas and innovations are introduced.
Senate Elections: Display Apathy

Spring has sprung and so has the race for Senate seats - if you can call it a race. Senate Elections Day was slated for April 28 and student apathy was at an all-time high.

According to the constitution of the Student Senate (Article V, Section 1, Clause 1), "The officers and members of the Student Senate shall be nominated by declaring their candidacy in writing to the Dean of Student Services one week before the elections."

The problem on the NEU campus is that no one cares enough to enter into student government and try their luck at winning a seat in the Senate. Although it isn't typical for everyone on campus to enter the race, there should be a relatively substantial per capita of students who are bright enough and interested enough to contribute their ideas and services to bettering conditions on campus for the student body.

Requirements of a candidate for President or Vice President of the Senate are: a full-time student holding a minimum of 24 hours credit, 15 of which were earned at NEU, and must be members of good standing on the Senate at the time of the election. The Senate shall approve the candidates. (Article IV, Section 11, Clause 1 and 2)

Obviously, these requirements place a limitation on the people who are eligible to run for office. Perhaps this is one of the reasons for the low participation in student government. A candidate must be a full-time student holding a minimum of 24 hours credit, 15 of which were earned at NEU, and must be members of good standing on the Senate at the time of the election. The Senate shall approve the candidates. (Article IV, Section 11, Clause 1 and 2)

The election for the 1974 spring term saw three offices up for grabs among 27 candidates. The candidates ran in secret because they were not able to campaign during the school day.

Even the people who were eligible to run did not have enough interest in the matter to respond. Perhaps this is one of the reasons for the low participation in student government. A candidate must be a full-time student holding a minimum of 24 hours credit, 15 of which were earned at NEU, and must be members of good standing on the Senate at the time of the election. The Senate shall approve the candidates.

If the people on this campus don't care about student representation and the advantages it has in solving problems and improving conditions, why have an election at all?

Or, for that matter, why have a Student Senate?

During the past school year there has been some confusion on applications for scholarships and financial aid. Several scholarships are a great aid to a great student on the basis of academic merit and leadership ability. When students apply for financial aid, they are supposed to be aware of deadlines and to apply in a timely manner to avoid delays in processing their applications. This year, students should be aware of the importance of deadlines, as many scholarships require an early submission to be considered for funding.
