Religious Emphasis Days Feature Carlton Pearson

Chris is Alive to Us is the theme of the third annual emphasis of religious services. Week is to be held October 24-26.

A program of music, films, speeches, rap sessions, and individual counseling will be held each night at 7 p.m. Carlton Pearson of the High Dimensions Ministry of Topeka will be the guest speaker for the week.

An opening assembly will be held at 9 a.m. Monday, October 25, in the Fine Arts Theatre. It will feature music by the "Children of Fire" singers from the Black Student Union Ensemble, and the "Higher Dimensions" group from Topeka as well as a speech by Pearson.

Also included in the week's activities are: The Gospel Road," a film starring Johnny Cash, to be shown Sunday evening; The Chi Alpha Choir and NEO students Paula White and Sue Ellen Jameson, both Miami sophomores, will perform for an ensemble at 9 a.m. Tuesday. Harold Ray, president of the student association at Oral Roberts University, will speak at that assembly.

NEO Reveals Colorful Past

By Karen McGinnis

Most of us were not around in the days of the Student Guide and the popular song "Five Foot Two, Eyes of Blue," but those things were a part of Northern Junior College in 1927.

How was NEO developed through the past 50 years? NEO was NEOC half a century ago.

Around 180 students attended classes in a single building. This building is today's Shiplely Hall.

Thirteen administrators supervised activities. Football season began each year with a practice scrimmage against the high school team. Arch rival, Coffeyville, defeated the 1927 Norse 6-0 in the opening game of the season. The heaviest player weighed only 192 pounds and the average team weight was 161 pounds.

For a short time in Norse history there were sororities and fraternities. Eta Omicron Gammas and Sigma Iota Chi were the sororities. Fraternities were Eta Iota Tau and Phi Sigma Nu.

Each semester began with a social "mixer." Other social activities on campus were Halloween party, bridge party and others.

Goddard Takes Position Playing Norse God Odin
by Becky Porter

With his long wooden sword and hair high behind, Eddie Goddard wears the traditional Norse God of War battle gear. Serving as Odin, meaning of the Northern Vikings, Eddie helps the college chem-leaders promote school spirit at home football games.

"I've been connected with from last year, but didn't notice him at the first game this year. I asked Dan Convers who he could get touch with so I could dress up as Odin. He sent me to Kathryn Page, the art instructor, who made the costume," Eddie explained.

"WE NEEDED A tall boy, six feet or taller, for the costume, because the head of Odin is four feet tall and a smaller boy would have to faithfully wear it," Kathryn Page said.

"I had to spend a lot of time doing the hair
and costume this year,
but it turned out
perfectly," Eddie
continued.

"Odin's head is a wooden frame covered with chicken wire and paper mache forms the facial features. "It is my own creation and I've redesigned it three different times," Odin said.

"Odin's a school symbolism that is researched in the library for details on his costume," Page exclaimed.

THE WELDED FRAME: work, more over the shoulders and the belt anchors it under the arm. "The head is heavy, I wear it out before ball games," Eddie
explained.

Kathryn Page constructed a smaller Odin head for baskettball games because the larger head wouldn't go through the margins.

"The costume was put together from an old football helmet and a different costume was worn.

"God and the chem-leaders always have to make sure the people like it. "Page explained.
