Grade cards are, in a sense, the most important and necessary type of student evaluation.

Without them, colleges, universities and job opportunities would be unable to judge a person's potential at a glance. Even though grade cards don't provide as much data as a personality profile, they can determine an individual's abilities and past achievements.

If a student is truly interested in such rigid evaluation, he would want to consider the subject matter in class in a similar way. Since the college student pays to learn instead of being paid to attend class, it is his responsibility to pay the bills for his money.

Teacher evaluation would point out the weaknesses a teacher should strive to overcome in his presentation. A student could judge the classroom presentation on how effective, relevant and beneficial it is toward the subject matter. Since students are the ones being taught, they should have a voice in determining the quality of their education.

Students Voice Dissension Over NEO Linen Service

Some controversy has arisen in past student senate meetings concerning the necessity of continuing linen services here at NEO.

According to Lloyd Oglesby, director of linen services, linen service is of vital importance to the student.

"The service is not a profit maker," emphasized Oglesby. "The service is actually very cheap. It costs the student $36 per year which averages out to $1 per week. We make enough to pay our labor and to see the replacement cost. The price has been this way for three to five years," explained Oglesby.

The linen service began under personal hygiene reasons. Besides the linen service, some students were sleeping on the mattresses and not bringing sheets from home. "We encouraged the students to bring their sheets, but this did not work. We decided on including the cost of linen service in the room and board fee. The student could exchange his linens every week," explained Oglesby.

"Could this service be optional?" if the service was optional, the price would have to go up considerably," stated Oglesby. "In April, the prices would make much profit. We have had to turn the price up considerably. "None of the students we don't own the linens provided. We make a contract for the service every year and are already set for this year. If we were to decide not to have the service, we could only offer it for next year," said Oglesby.

"The key is to keep the service divided among the students. There is no way to make the service while others do not. Many of the students would only bring their own sheets from home while others cannot afford to do so.

Mid-Term Grades Provide Account Of Students Rank

"With the end of the first nine weeks coming up, students should start preparing for mid-term exams," declared Dr. Charles Angle, dean of instruction.

Exams will be given Oct. 16, 17 and 18. These exams will be one hour long, and given during regular class periods. According to Angle, individual results may be picked up in the registrar's office, located in the Library-Administrative Building. Some instructors may post results by social security number in the classroom.

Mid-term exams are three words many students shudder at. "I don't think these grades are recorded on the student's permanent transcript," said Angle.

"The importance of these exams is to see how you are doing and how well they are doing and give them plenty of time to bring their grades up before the finals are given. Mid-term results will not be mailed out," explained Angle.

Dr. Charles Angle, dean of instruction, believes that the whole teacher evaluation movement has declined nationwide.

"The reason is that the most effective teacher evaluation is done in the classroom with questions directed by the teacher himself," Dr. Angle explained.

"If a student has a complaint or feel that his instructor is doing a good job of teaching the subject material, he has the right to discuss his feelings with the teacher.

"A student should ask questions and make comments in class, let the instructor know if he's the subject matter. If not, the student should take the initiative and talk over the problem with the teacher," Dr. Angle concluded.

"IF INSTRUCTORS ARE already interested in discovering their weaknesses, with no ego involved, the semester evaluation forms are helpful. Teachers do take them seriously," he concluded.

The imported water color exhibit is now at the Fine Arts Center through Oct. 27. The exhibit is free and open to the public Monday through Friday and also on Saturday after the production of "Mame".

130 pints of blood were given to the Red Cross Blood Bank Oct. 5 at the Harrill Dobson Lounge.

"The turn out was great and everything went smoothly," said Margaret Krutzfeldt, executive secretary of the Red Cross.

"Most people who signed up gave blood. We were able to fill in all those who wanted to give blood but who didn't sign up, explained Krutzfeld.

"There were four student nurses available at all times and coolers were available if anyone felt ill," said Krutzfeld.

"It was the first time to give blood for a majority of the students. However, all went well," concluded Krutzfeld.

Tulsa Photographer Verbalizes Viewpoint

In the world of photography, most hospitals spend years trying to build a reputation for them selves. This was not the case for ECO graduate Rabbit Hare. Hare graduated from Geneseo in 1973, from ECO in 1975, and from Northeastern State in 1977. ECO has played a large part in the life of his entire family. Hare has two sisters who have attended ECO and his mother is currently enrolled there.

HARE, AT 52, is the youngest photographer for the Tulsa World. After spending a year as a photographer for Congressman Ted Rehberger, he began working for the World. Among his credits is a first place award in the national collegiate photographers association, while he was still a student at ECO. Hare has had many of his photographs reproduced on the Associated Press wire service, which selects only pictures that appeal to the public eye.

Photography gives me an opportunity to create. It really opens up your eyes, and makes you more aware of everything around you, Hare says. "As you see in a different light," continues Hare. "Everyone creates in their own way, I do it with a camera."

Working for a paper like the Tulsa World gives Hare an opportunity to have his work viewed by over half a million people. "I love creating a scene on film, and being able to share it with people the next day," explained Hare.

RABBIT RECENTLY returned to ECO photography class, to show some examples of his work, and to assist students on a one-to-one basis. "As time goes by, I hope to be able to do more of this type of thing. I think I can communicate better with people in small groups."

"Photography is unique in it's own way. Being good means that you utilize nature, and learn to appreciate it," emphasized Hare. "When you go to take a picture of a person, you can't just stop it, you have to spend time with an individual, discover his personality."

"I think my best work is of children and animals, natural things. The best part of my job is being able to go out on your own and get the best picture you can," said Hare. "But a large part of the job is responsibility. Even if you're the best photographer in the world, you're only as good as your weakest point."

BEING THE YOUNGEST photographer on a large newspaper hasn't been a handicap to Hare. "The paper needs prime photographers every day, and with a staff of nine, we always have good quality pictures to draw from," he explained.

Hare counts scuba diving, and flying his own plane among his hobbies. He also enjoys meeting people.

Even after three years at the Tulsa World, Hare says, "I know a lot, but I've still got a lot to learn, and the only way to learn is by doing."

If you like children and want to learn more about them, or plan on being a parent some day then you are a perfect candidate for NEACUS. NEACUS is Northeastern Oklahoma Association on Child Development, and is in coordination with the Oklahoma Association on Children Under Six (OACUS), which is a national organization. "NEACUS works with and for children," stated Carden Donaldson, Jr., president of NEACUS.

Pre-school years are the most important years in a child's developing autonomy. A child is age three, these three years are vital to the cultivation of a productive citizen in later years," explained Miss Donaldson.

NEACUS PROVIDES A child care center mainly as an educational service, "our lab school nursery is run as much like a professional day care center as possible. We plan our own curriculum, nutrition, and so on."

NEACUS meets every other week in Allen Hall. Although many members are child development majors, anyone can join. Meetings are especially urged to join. "It involves men too, because men are going to be fathers someday. It makes a difference what kind of father you learn to be a good parent, it doesn't just happen," said Miss Donaldson.

Along with each meeting there is a program. Usually in each program there is a speaker, such as an elementary counselor, elementary teacher, or parenting counsellors. They also visit day care centers and observe various techniques. NEACUS sponsors various programs such as the Big Brother or Sister plan. We visit hospitals, too, and read stories to the sick. NEACUS PROVIDES A learning experience as well as fun for the children and members. Anyone who is interested is urged to contact Carolyn Donaldson.

Season Previewed for Cagers

By Curtiss McGinnis

Experience will be the main asset for the Northeastern A&M Golden Norse basketball team this season with seven returning lettermen looking for a seat in coach Green's squad.

Last year the Norse finished with an overall record of 18-12 and an 8-4 conference record. NED is seeking Madison and Wingate for first place in the conference championship of the Bi-State Conference.

Green will be entering his 10th season at the head position of the Golden Norse and has compiled a 291-147 coaching record. While at NED, Green has led the Norsemen to two conference titles and five tourney runs in the Bi-State league. Tom Pote will begin his fourth season as assistant coach.

Leading the Norse in scoring last season was All-Conference, All-Regional standout Keith "Snipes" Hilliard, 6-2, guard.

Wranglers of Cisco

NED Next NEO Opponent

By Benny Van Schuyter

Coming off an exciting 10-7 victory over the Golden Norse last season, the Golden Norsemen get back into action after a week off as they travel to Cisco, Texas to face the Wranglers Saturday, 7:30 p.m.

Cisco, 2-3, is coming off a disappointing 30-6 loss to Southwestern Texas Tex on Tuesday night. The Wranglers are a physical team, which can become an explosive one. They have a decent assortment of backcourt speed and size and are strong on the boards.

"THEY HAVE GOOD athletes and good personnel. They are just a little bit away from being a competitive team," commented Norse head coach, Glen Wolfe.

"We're going into the game with more confidence than in the past. Our practices have improved with good morale," said Wolfe.

"We're going to have to generate some offense and play tough basketball. Out team defense must improve. I have to establish some kind of a defensive philosophy. I can't live on the run alone. Our defense must continue to play like they have in past games," added Wolfe.

"A LONG ROAD trip is never easy, it's a deterrent to what you want to do. When you get out of your normal environment, the players tend to wander, especially the freshmen. We bring things that help keep them minds on football, such as films and we have chalk talks," added Wolfe.

Home All-Stars from Welch, Okla., Rod Williams, 6-5, and All-Conference teammate Shonti band, 6-8, from Oklahoma, Funk Williams and Wingo played the same team in high school that won the state championship in Florida.

Other members trying out for the squad this weekend are Bob Schaar, Rick Dillen, and Dr. Allen Williams.

We have a very unselfish team and they are not afraid to learn and utilize new techniques. Their greatest asset is their ability to locate the open man and let him with an effective pass," declared Green.

The Norse have had two weeks of outside running along with intramural scrimmages.

Coach Green commented, "We're looking for a good team."

NED will have six scrimmages along with the tough 30 game schedule and a competitive 12 games in the Bi-State Conference now. Along with NED in the Bi-State Conference are: Rowan Junior College, Seminole Junior College, Westark Junior College, Carl Albert Junior College, St. Gregorys College and Oklahoma City Southwest.

NED lost to their opponents with 2,061 total points to the opponents 2,773 and an 80 game point average to 75.8 for the opponents.

Colclough... The "END"

By Jeff Goosby

Sports Editor

Colclough's desire to be a good defensive end is something that could very well concern the entire NED football team.

Unlike what football players tell and not believe when questioned, Colclough possesses a joking tone that would persuade most coaches to run the play to the opposite side.

"WILLIE HAS BEEN playing sound defensive football all year," praised NED defensive line coach Bill Yocum. "He is a total team player and does exactly what the coaching staff wants him to do.

"His heights for a defensive end are not all that great," explained the 6-1, 210 pound sophomore from North Little Rock, Ark. "I started out as a defensive end before being switched to defensive end.

"A freshman, Colclough was very instrumental in the Golden Norse's 8-2 season. While playing in eight games Colclough displayed 29 solo tackles and collected 7 sacks.

"LAST YEAR I was too personal," continued Colclough. "I wasn't as the challenge. Now I know what I have to do.

"When Colclough runs onto the gridiron at the start of each game, he has one thing in mind and that is to do the best possible job he can do."

Editor's Notes: Venereal disease is an important health issue. The reason for this article is to draw attention to what venereal disease can be a problem and how to prevent it.

By Dana Everland

Editorial Board

Carol Barnett joined the NORD staff in 1975. She is the nurse in charge of Health Services at NORD. Barnett graduated from Mount Carmel High School in Pittsburgh, Kansas, receiving a diploma in nursing. Before coming to NORD Barnett was a nurse at the Banner Memorial Hospital in Beaver Springs, Kansas.

What is venereal disease? Venereal disease is a general name for those diseases caused by organisms which are transmitted from persons who are already infected and can pass the disease to others either by sexual intercourse or by close body contact including sharing the same towels.

Q: Must there be sexual contact to spread venereal disease? A: Yes. The organisms causing these diseases cannot live very long outside the body and must be capable of air and water and warm moist areas. There is little danger becoming infected with the disease through public toilets, door knobs, drinking cups or eating utensils.

Q: How many types of venereal diseases are there? A: The two most common are Syphilis and Gonorrhea.

Q: When does the disease occur? A: Any disease can occur at any time. Some diseases are contracted within two to six weeks after exposure to the infected person. Other diseases are more acute and appear almost immediately with symptoms appearing within six days after exposure. The symptoms of Gonorrhea in the male can last from two to eight days after contact. The symptoms of Syphilis can be acute or chronic. Painful inflammation in the utricle canal, which causes burning upon urination, is common.Women with Gonorrhea can go undetected. Unnoticed the infection can spread into the reproductive tract. Women can transmit the disease and not even know they have it.

The disease attacks mostly teenagers and young adults.

Discotheque Fans

Low Noise Causes Deafness

Are you a discotheque fan? If you do attend many discotheques, you may be a victim of a slow and painful journey towards becoming deaf.

Disco play very highly amplified music, loud, and, in most cases, are over our own sound appliances such as stereo tapes, records and radios. These sounds loud enough may be harmful to the ears now, but it is the potential damage our hearing becomes.

PEOPLE THAT ARE GROWING old are subject to a slow hearing loss. Hearing loss because of age cannot be prevented, but hearing loss because of low sound can be controlled. As a young person to control and protect your hearing is simple. If you listen to music (or other) there are other ways to protect your hearing other than reducing the volume. For example, you can leave the noisy area, if you can't leave the earphones or earplugs. Sound like a comedy act to you? It can be a serious matter to our hearing. According to experts, the noise at a disco is about the same as a jet taking off.

One in ten untreated victims will become permanently crippled heart victims.

Many people die each year from the untreated disease.

The solution is not just to do away with music completely, but you need to cut down the volume on your stereo equipment.

The reactions of most teenagers and young adults when you mention turning down the volume is a very offensive one. Teenagers and young adults become more or less addicted to loud music, and the more they are exposed to it the more they think they need loud volumes to enjoy their music.

Q: What are the treatments for venereal disease? A: A new test for Syphilis is a serum test, and a serologic test to find out the presence of antibodies to the disease. Syphilis disease is transmitted through sexual contact and is transmitted by infected blood and semen. Venereal disease is transmitted through contact with infected blood and semen. Many people die each year from the untreated disease. Both men and women may be carriers.

Q: How long do treatments last? A: It depends on the disease. The quicker you notice the disease and the treatments it will last about 14 days.

Q: In what ways does the disease increase so rapidly? A: Many people having the disease do not recognize the symptoms of the disease. They do not notice the symptoms and get treated. Many people have the disease, but do not recognize the symptoms of the disease. They do not notice the symptoms and get treated. Many people have the disease, but do not recognize the symptoms of the disease. They do not notice the symptoms and get treated.

Q: Who can get venereal disease? A: The young and old, the male and female and some of the non-social classes. It most frequently attacks teenagers and young adults.

Q: Is the disease preventable? A: If a person comes in contact with the disease he/she can be infected again.

Moonies Face Distrust In Recent Youth Survey

By Campus Digest News Service

Remember those funny people who used to try to sell you candies and catchy songs to go to a "peace" meeting? Well, the Moonies that are back. Rev. Sun Myung Moon and his Unification Church in this area are still around. But they're apparently not doing as well with the students anymore. Rev. Sun Myung Moon has been criticized by students from several universities, and he has been accused of leading a cult.

According to a recent Gallup Youth Survey, only 1 in 10 of those students sampled held favorable views of Moon and the Unification Church. However, the Unification Church is the largest group in the survey. The survey found that the number of young people who have heard of Moon has fallen.
