By Delores Harris

The Rev. Marcan, a member of the Presbyterian Church and a scholar of the Old Testament, is teaching a class on the New Testament and has been invited to speak at the University of Chicago. The course is designed to provide students with a comprehensive understanding of the New Testament and to prepare them for further study in the field.

Rev. Marcan, who is a graduate of Princeton Theological Seminary, has been instrumental in creating a course that will provide students with a thorough understanding of the New Testament's historical and theological context. The course will cover a wide range of topics, including the various literary forms found in the New Testament, the social and cultural contexts in which they were written, and the ways in which they have been interpreted throughout history.

The course is open to students from a variety of backgrounds, and is designed to encourage critical thinking and creativity. Students will be encouraged to engage with the material and to develop their own perspectives on the New Testament's role in shaping the Christian faith.

The course will meet once a week, and will include lectures, discussions, and group projects. Students will be expected to participate actively in class, and to complete regular reading assignments and assignments.

Middle-aged Seek Higher Education

"College education has been agreed to much to upgrade people and to get so many better than make men and women are coming back for a career," remarked James Reese, director of admissions and registrar.

The average age of a student at NSU is 19 years, according to the 1979 fall statistics. Some of the average are younger and many are older.

The younger include those students who have just gotten out of high school and are continuing their education. The older students are those who have started a college education, or never have, and found that they need to have one for a better career.

Many of the older students are enrolled in business or technology programs. At any age a student is able to apply for scholarships, financial aid, and work study.

Heidi Miller, a sophomore majoring in speech, said, "I started my college education 20 years ago and since then I've raised two daughters and have one more to go. I decided to come back and get my degree and teach. My children think it's great."

The younger students don't seem to mind having classes with students older than them. "It doesn't bother me at all. I really think it's great. Both my parents came back to school and they really had a good time," commented freshman, Kim Mer- pely.

"I feel like I'm the senior citizen around here," said Sherman Fisher, a sophomore majoring in electronics. Fisher returned to school to have a second career. "I already had one career, I might as well go for two," added Fisher. Fisher is the father of two children ages 9 and 14. "They don't mind me coming back at all," commented Fisher.

"The younger students treat me like another one of their friends. Everyone is really nice around here," added Miller.

New Assistant Enjoy Work

"My job here consists of being Bob Kilman's clerical secretary, audio visual assistant, and graphic arts assistant, so I do a little bit of everything," explained Mary Bicknell. "I heard of a possibility of an opening in May for this job and I applied in July, they considered my application and I brought none of my art work in and was hired," she commented.

"I really enjoy my job but it is a lot of hard work getting everything on time and keeping the things coming smoothly while being organized and creative at the same time," explained Bicknell.

Bicknell is a graduate from Pius X High School in Piusa, Iowa. She graduated with a bachelor's in fine art degree.

In her spare time Bicknell's hobbies include reading, quilting, embroidery and photography, which she has had professional success in. Bicknell is married to Martin Bicknell who teaches lighting design, speech, and does video directing for the college.

Keen Interest Vital to Being Professional

He not only considers himself as an English instructor, but also as a professional uncle.

Robert C. Baye has taught English in numerous places for 11 years after receiving a bachelor of science in education from Missouri Southern State College, Joplin, Mo. He has received his master from Pittsburg State University. Baye has also taken summer courses at the University of Massachusetts, North Texas State University and Missouri State University.

Throughout his teaching career, Baye explains, "I have taught English at Wyandotte Junior High, reading, senior high speech, English at Kansas State, composition at Pittsburg State University, English for grades 9-12 at Central City High School, and I also have taught composition and literature for two years at Oklahoma State University."

When not busy teaching English Baye said: "My hobbies include reading, jogging, swimming, eating very good food, but not doing the dishes afterward."

Baye is not married and exploits, "I have no immediate plans to do so either, although I do have a niece and nephew and am a professional uncle."

Baye concludes, "I like NSU very much and enjoy teaching. I just love the students and I hope that they enjoy me."

Dragons Fall
Norsemen Slay Hutch

By Jim Longo
Special to the News

Scoring 14 points within 19 seconds in the early moments of the second half enabled the NOE Golden Norsemen to coast to an unconsummated 27-5 victory over the Blue Dragons of Hutchinson Community College, Saturday night in Hutchinson, Kan.

Opening the home portion of the 1980 season last Friday, the Norse took their 2-0 record into a rematch against the University of Arkansas junior varsity in the season opener. NOE came from behind in the final minutes of the game to edge the Buffaloes 18-17 Saturday.

"AGAINST HUTCHINSON, OUR defensive efforts, just played a magnificent game. They were able to completely neutralize the Buffaloes rushing game and gave great support in passing situations," said head coach Gary Wolfe. "The secondary also did a superb job with their coverage which was needed in the fact that we made seven interceptions and forced the Buffaloes to go to the air."

The Norsemen will travel to Joplin, Mo., on Sept. 20 to face Missouri Southern in a rematch at 10 a.m.

Baseballers Grab
Two Lion Games

By Janet Bowling
Special to the News

Hosting the first series of a triple header against Missouri Southern State College of Joplin, Mo., last week on the NEO diamond.

Following the first six inning 8-1 doubleheader game, the Norsemen rallied with an 11-0 six inning victory and a 4-1 win in the fifth inning nightcap. All the games were shortened because of the extreme heat and a lack of lighting at the newly remodeled facility.

"SINCE THIS IS a period of purity evaluation for both schools, we played a lot of people in three games," said baseball coach Mike Clark. "I was able to get a look at approximately 30 of my 44 prospects and I was pleased with the results," continued Clark.

Sophomore third baseman Greg Griffith provided Clark with some outstanding offensive punch while also sparking the field. Griffith kept two triples and drove in two runs. "Greg did an excellent job with the glove which will help strengthen one of the corners of our infield," commented Clark.

"Obviously, we not only kept the ball in play and had a lot of extra base hits, but we also mustched up and bit several out of the park and had four hits reach the centerfield fence on the fly," exclaimed Clark. "We also showed that our team speed has improved considerably over last year. We have several guys that can fly and we recorded six stolen bases."

TWO AREA PITCHERS, freshmen Carl Haus and Welch and Dale Hamilton of Tulia, Okla., faced the maximum of six batters without allowing a hit or walk in two innings of work.

"Pitching was our biggest problem last year. We did not have anyone who could come in and throw strikes consistently out of the bullpen," said Clark. "So far, I think we have eight pitchers that can easily throw them. We will get a good look at them before pulling down on the Hutchinson 9 yard line.

After Johnson moved the ball down to the one yard line on two running plays, Wolfe followed the block of sophomores Stump and Stump across the end zone for the score. With Smith's PAT kick, the Norse upped their lead to 20-5 with 1:22 remaining in the third quarter.

THE Fumbles of the Norsemen's soul went out on the ensuing kickoff. Pusey returned the ball to the Blue Dragon's 50 yard line, but a hustling return halfback George Mote recovered the ball on the Hutchinson 24 yard line.

After a pass interference call against the Dragins on their own two yard line, the Norsemen scored their final touchdown of the game when Johnson went in for the six points. Smith added his third PAT to give NOE a 27-5 cushion with 1:09 left in the third quarter.
Scholars Fight Calorie Intake

College students gain weight and lose their shape in the first couple of years of school.

In a nation-wide study, according to a research done by the Tulsa World, 80% of freshmen students gain from 10 to 20 pounds their first year at college. 60% of the sophomore students gain from five to ten pounds their second year.

Most students cannot understand the reason why this happens. They complain about the lunchroom food not being like Mom's home cooking, so they don't eat as much in the lunchroom. To fill their grinding stomachs most students spend from $2 to $10 and sometimes $20 on junk food or a fast food restaurant, which there is always a lot of in a college town.

If you burn off the calories that those little snacks will put on you, weight gain will be no problem.

NEO has an indoor swimming pool facility which can be used all year round. Swimming can also be a form of enjoyment and at the same time you are exercising. Tennis courts are also available both night and day to the student body.

Intramural teams are formed in various sports as group recreation and a form of competition between the various dorm floors.

If you want to take up jogging, there are a number of paths and roads around campus where you can run. Weight lifting is available to both male and female at the field house.

Walking is classified as one of the most effective kinds of exercise to condition the human body. By the time you walk to class from your dorm, or another class you have burned up an amount of calories. Walking also improves the respiratory system and is a form of relaxation for many. It also wears the inches of cellulite, commonly known as fat, off the body. A dietician will tell you that if you walk at least one mile a day it will tightens your legs and hinder quarters.

When you start exercising don't do too much at first. Gradually build up your body. If not, you'll end up with sore muscles, aching feet, and can in more than one case hardly dismount yourself. It is also a good idea to consult your family doctor or physician before you start some strenuous exercise. He will be able to tell you exactly in what kind of condition you are in and set a pace for you to begin your exercising.

Good eating habits will help condition your body and keep the bums and bulges off. Watch what you eat and pick out the bad things for you, replace them with the nutritious foods that you need. It won't hurt you all that much if you have a doughnut or candy bar now and then, but it will if you have it three or four times a day. Too much chocolate and sugar has been known to effect your complexion as well as put on weight. Remember the saying, "You are what you eat."

The next time you are in class and find that you've gotten the wrong book, look at the bright side of the situation. You are helping your body and yourself having to make that extra trip back to the dorm.

Best Selling Novel On Stands Incapable of Being Forgotten

Someone writes a book every few years that everyone is talking about, that must be read and cannot be forgotten.

"The Investigation" by Dorothy Ulrich is such a book. KERRY KELLER is a vital semantic creation and her story is an emotional experience within itself. She emerges as a total character and stays in your mind as a personality after the book is finished.

"The Investigation" became a best seller within ten days of publication. It is a novel so powerful, so disturbing, yet so believable, that it keeps you interested through the last page.

It has a lot of extraordinary depth and passion, rich in characters, brilliantly ambitious in scope. It leads you into the underworld of the Male and is compared to the GODFATHER. It has as many twists as pages.

Bell's Expressions

By Sonya Bell
Editorial Editor

When you come to college you have a major in mind. More than one student comes to college to get married.

If there is a place to find your husband or wife, college is as good a place as any. College is like a dating market to these marriage-conscious.

THEY SET UP a scale from one to ten and rate their marriage hopes within three qualifications as a future mate. Then there are some who don't care who they marry as long as they have a wedding band on their finger.

For some, if the prospect has money, but is in too bad of a look, they can always put a sack over their face. A couple of prospects are what you might call super sacks. Their future mate doesn't mind just as long as they have enough cash to keep a buying those once again sacks.

Appearance is important though, to most of these shoppers. There are those who want a grade: "A" choice selection. This includes good grooming, your car, and looking as if you have a good meal last night.

They think cars are better than having a double sacker.

BEING NICE AND careful is also a factor they look for. They don't want a man who will least on your or a constant nag all the time. They want one who will treat them like a human being.

Most of these shoppers have to keep in mind that they will be living with this person, supposed to be richer or poorer, through sickness and in health, until death do them part. The vows they take will not be like taking an oath in a club, it will mean that they will become as one whole being.

They just won't be able to run around with their friends and have all the fun they used to have. Remember they will have to consider that they have another person to whom their actions will effect.

Most young couples don't consider the financial matters involved. The economy today is so high that it will be rough for a young couple to make it on their own. The cost of living, as everyone has noticed, is still climbing and it probably won't get any better.

With the cost of things, a young couple would have to do without a lot of material things that they were used to before they got married, then causing conflicts.

SO THE NEXT time you go shopping for a marriage partner, make sure it's the right one. Consider that you'll live with this person all your life, make sure you've done your own research, and make double sure you love them.
