Hypnotist thrills crowd

At the Phi Theta Kappa state convention held at St. Gregory's College in Shawnee last Saturday, the Kappa chapter took home several awards and earned three offices on various premises.

Golf Eagles thrilled students last Friday while demonstrating his amazing talents of mental agility, hypnosis and ESP.

Eagles began his two hour show with examples of ESP. He asked for a volunteer from the audience, then had the volunteer collect same change from another member. Eagles then had his volunteer count the amount of change silently and concentrate until he had $3. He then accurately proclaimed the amount of money that the student had.

Secretly, blindfolded with tape, a silver dollar, a circular piece of cardboard and a black blindfold, Eagles identified a cut-up line, book and a deck of cards. He hypnotized the audience and cut the line. Eagles included his magic show throughout the show.

"My purpose in the second part of the show is to show the higher side of hypnosis. Hypnosis is not a thing. It is something that you do for yourself. In a way it is comparable to playing a game. The mind is a tool of the imagination. Anyone can be hypnotized. Before the show, you were all hypnotized. Then the fun begins. Students now act as a theater, they pantomime pictures, they go to the movies, they play in a way they never have before while in a hypnotic state."

School spirit seen in different ways

Since the inception of college campuses around the world, school spirit has been an integral part of college life. The term "school spirit" can refer to various aspects of college life, such as the feeling of community, the support for athletic teams, or the overall enthusiasm of students for school events. Here are some ways to think about school spirit:

Vacation begun last week for the second semester of the 1971-72 school year and was known as "open day.

Other changes made during this year included the addition of three new Vocational Home Economics courses, a new music center, and additions to the library, as well as others.

Combination of traits gives Fisher lead in "Ondine" production

Fisher lead in "Ondine" was considered for the production of "Ondine" to participate September 28, 29, and October 1 at the Fine Arts Center.

"Ondine" is a movie about the character of the same name from Greek mythology. The role is a great opportunity to express emotions, especially the one that many people enjoy the chance to do and that is crying on cue.

The most difficult aspect of playing this role is the movement involved, but the character is not a moody one. According to Fisher, "I am a very happy-go-lucky kind of person who enjoys the outdoors and being with friends.

AGGIE SPIRIT

Members of the Aggie Society wear Aggie spirit by driving to the Golden Nugget in a Aggie automobile. The group is a social organization that promotes Aggie spirit on campus and provides opportunities for students to participate in various activities.

Jackson wants fall models selected for office board

By Sandy Wilson

Jackson's brother, Jack, Jackson, is also a staff member of the staff and is a member of the fall office board.

Going to school, working for the office board, and cheerleading practice and being a member, this 13-year-old Bailey Brown needs a busy schedule.

Jackson's brother, Jack, Jackson, has a two-year-old daughter, Erika, who she had at age 26. But having a child never stopped her from reaching her goal, she said she will have to put a limit on studying.

"I want to be a lawyer when I grow up," noted Jackson.

The students from the college don't have to be in the office to participate in the office," added Bailey.

The students from the college never have to be in the office to participate in the office, but they can participate in the office if they want to."

The office board is made up of students from the college, and the office board is comprised of students from the college, and they choose the girls from the high school board of which are alternates.

Performances not hindered by size

Many qualities are required of the members of the marching band, including patience, dedication, and size. When you're playing with a band, you have to be patient to learn what you're doing.

"We have to be patient with people who don't know what they're doing," said Scott Haines, Commerce freshman.

Setting goals and sticking to them has become a trademark trait for Golden Norse running back Jackie Jackson.

"My ultimate goal is to play pro. I always thought I could do it."

Jackson has been working on his skills in practice, focusing on speed and agility.

"I'm not as fast as I used to be, but I'm working on it," he said.

Homecoming trap set for Beavers

Facing a tough challenge, Coach Bob Goodson had to devise a strategy to counter the powerful offensive line of the Beavers.

"They have a strong line, and we need to focus on our own defense," Goodson said.

Hectic weekend arrives

It's amazing how fast time is slipping past us, mid-terms are finally over and now we can concentrate on something upbeat for awhile, such as homecoming.

With all the clubs and organizations bustling around, working on floats and all the other things associated with homecomings and parades, things were destined to become hectic as the weekend draws nearer.

Some of the activities have already begun, with the selection of a homecoming queen this past week, and the choice for a theme, which was finally agreed upon to be "Norwegian Force." There was also the cookout and the drama department's production, "Night Must Fall."

But the best is still yet to come with the annual homecoming parade which will proceed town the main street of Miami featuring queen candidates, floats, Norse Stars, drill team, local high school bands and NEO's own marching band.

Following the parade there will be a banquet and then the main event, which will pit the Golden Norsemen against the Pratt, KS, Beavers. Despite the name of their mascot, the Beaver's should provide us with some excitement, or at least a new hit.

After the game, there will be a dance in the ballroom to celebrate the victory with some live music from the band, "Tight Fit." From there on out you will have to provide your own entertainment, which shouldn't be hard to do.

Everyone should get into the spirit of things and turn out "en masse" to cheer our football team on to victory and help the Golden Norsemen regain their usual position at the top of the collegiate football field.

After all, this is probably the only weekend of the entire semester that you won't hear someone complaining that there isn't anything to do around here, there is a lot happening at NEO this week and all you have to do is get involved.

MOVIES

The Concrete Jungle

Sickeningly exploitive and made on the very cheap, this film uses one of America's most pressing problems to demand sympathy in its guise as a paean to paranoia and the need to escape from our own society. The conflict between the die-hard corn-growing community and the new age cult of people who, in a futile attempt to escape, build their own society and live in a box. Directed by Tom DeBenedictis, stars Jill St. John as a woman, and John Tabor as her hipster artist and the man in the box. Robert Luba, whose presence makes the picture weak at times, has an aging problem as a pervert, and his writing is weak as a drug story who talks to his young girl, Tracy Bregman, into a smuggling attempt that lands her in prison. She is sentenced to 3 to 5 years and apparently, having her clothes ripped off by anyone who's in the mood, which, in this case, is just about everyone. There are several scenes, most dark and abandoned, where the language is even lower than the decor. (R)

The Incubus

According to folklore, an incubus is a sad spirit whichinfests women in their sleep. Sleeping, of course, can not be accomplished without the interference of this malevolent creature who are all weak, screaming and kicking. Jake Casserey meets his mortgage payments by portraying a incubus in a New England village that is beset by a rash of rapes and murders. Eric Faller is the daughter's father. She's in love with a boy played by Duncan McRae, whose awakening seems to be of the incubus attacks. As he is uttered is contrary to what the incubus tells him, the imaginary story has been told with enough genre conventions to lend the New England story. The worst element of the film, however, is how much John is the town, as the town's police chief, manages to talk back to the incubus. The notion seems to be either to say the incubus is a creature that is the reincarnation of the people who are the incubus's victims. (R)
