Citizens work with police to capture robbery suspect

Two young men chased in downtown Miami last week have been charged in the theft of a valuable painting.

The trial of the two men is set for Monday at 2:30 p.m. in the State Court.

The painting, a valuable piece of art, was taken from a local art museum last week.

The two men, both 18 years old, are accused of breaking into the museum and stealing the painting.

Police have been searching for the men for the past two weeks and have not yet found them.

The painting is valued at $50,000.

Jazz band schedules local tour

The Jazz Band will go on tour Tuesday, Oct. 15 and will return by 5 p.m.

"Our band is really coming together," said Steve Mixon, jazz band director.

"We will tour at different areas around the state, going to small towns and larger cities, playing all over the state."

2 VIEWPOINT

Early in life, children are taught the "Ten Commandments" from the Bible. Frequently, the most vivid commandments such as "Thou shalt not steal and thou shalt not covet thy neighbor's property," are forgotten.

They seem to be forgotten by a small group of students looking for a "cheap thrill." Crime on this campus is at record highs, but no one seems to know why. Several thefts have occurred within the last two weeks. On Oct. 4, two suspects were apprehended who had reportedly stolen at least 11 wallets and purses.

Both suspects were students at this school and one of them was apprehended at Russell Hall. Most of the wallets recovered belonged to the students and faculty of the college. The wallets had been thrown into the ashes of buildings on the campus.

These detrimental acts are inexcusable in the problems they create.

For example, if the administration finds that additional security is necessary the students may be forced to pay the penalty through a raised tuition or additional fees. Not to mention, the fact that we each fed a certain amount while merely going to class. Purses and wallets are being stolen from the hands of the owners. It is a sad day when no one can walk to class without the fear of being mugged or ripped off.

It won't be long until all we wear is a uniform. But if this goes on, we will lose all our sense of education.

LETTER

Dear Editor:

In response to the letter to the Miami Student Betting, in the Sept. 27 issue of the Norse Wind, it is to be known that this "all hands on deck" sign was put up for the majority of "Adult Learners' Club." The sign was put up in response to the increase of security and the need to know how many people are in the library at any given time.

To answer any question, the library has a very limited staff and the library is open from 9:00 a.m. to 10:00 p.m. every day.

Yours truly,

Apply soon for an academy nomination

The academies—West Point and the Naval Academy—look for students who are prepared to attend high school. Nominees are selected based on academic performance and character. Each academy requires applicants to be nominated by a member of the military.

Letters of recommendation are required from a member of the military who is familiar with the applicant's abilities and character. The letter should be written on official military stationery and should include the applicant's name, date of birth, and the reason for the nomination.

The deadline for nominations is usually in late November or early December. Students interested in applying should contact their local military representatives to learn more about the application process.

Play review

"Annie and Old Lace" was originally written and directed by a New York troupe of students and is now being performed at the Norse Wind College Theatre. The cast includes a variety of talented actors, including a young female student who recently received a nomination for best actress in a community play.

The play is a heartwarming story about a young girl who discovers her love for acting and the importance of perseverance. It features memorable performances by the entire cast and is sure to delight audiences of all ages.

Don't miss this wonderful production and support the Norse Wind College Theatre.
Spooklight attracts many visitors

Henry Hoffman

Local legends abound, and northwestern Oklahoma is no exception.

The northern woods have stories that are much braver, though most famous are the ones told of Ed Glen. Many superstitious people tell stories of the strange and fantastic legends of their territory, and few of them are more common.

In this area, the tales are of Loven's Leap, devil worship, and, of course, the Spooklight.

Take any given summer or fall night, and in the darkness someone is probably trying to catch a glimpse of the Spooklight. The times have changed in the area of the mysterious light, and there are more and more people in the woods telling the stories. But, it is a source of fascination for many people who have not seen it. It remains an attraction, and a challenge for many.

No one really knows what it is, but most of the people in the area are aware of it, or at least have heard about it. Many of the older citizens of the area tell tales of what they think the light "really" is. Some say it is the work of the devil, others do not know and decide to leave it alone. It is a source of fascination for many.

The spooklight is a source of local pride for some, but many of the residents have complained that the only people who come out are the ones who get drunk and make a mess, instead of looking for the light.

There are many theories and local superstitions as to what the light is. Some of the stories run from the mundane to the incredible, but, as is the way with most legends, someone believes it, passed it on, and kept it alive. Some say it is the result of an eternal light burning in memory of two Indian lovers who committed suicide. Others say it is the Spooklight of the devil or the spirit of a cute little girl who went down to hell herself and now spends her time searching for it with her brothers. Others feel that it is a mischievous trick for his own children.

There are many legends about the light, and no one really knows the truth of it.

A form of the spooklight, one might argue, is that it is a reflection of all the world's problems. The world is divided, the light is divided. The light is divided into two parts. The light is a reflection of all the world's problems.

Fent assumes presidency

Roger Fent is one of those people who seem to be doing something every minute of the day. Not only does he teach Ag Economics, Agri-Economics, Marketing, and a new class, but he also manages the college farm and serves as president of the Faculty Association and president of the Faculty Senate.

In addition, he is the offensive coordinator for the college and the coach for the Aggie Football Club.

Fent's new duties as president of the Faculty Association include meeting with the administrative council once a week and representing the college at the ISACG. He is also the head football coach and serves as chairman for President Steve Smith.

Fent is the first time that he has held such a position, and says that it takes a lot of time.

Some of the goals for the '93-'94 school year include: "encouraging and improving off-campus communications." Fent publishes a monthly newsletter called "Fenf," which is distributed to all faculty, students, and staff of the college.

"It's important to recognize talent on campus," Fent said, "and get free flowing communication started. It is one of the most important things for the college to provide." Fent and "Fenf" are also trying to start a monthly newsletter for the college.

Fent is certainly busy this year, but he appears to enjoy his work immensely.

Ogle leads Norse cheers as male squad member

"Our main purpose is to add volume and flash to the cheerleaders," says Jim Ogle, a sophomore from Newkirk.

"Every year we have been a cheerleader, and this year we have put together and decided to try to help the cheerleaders," said Ogle.

"We want everybody to know we are having a good time," added Ogle.

Ogle, one of the main cheerleaders for the football and basketball teams, is the leader of the cheerleaders at the college this year. The cheerleaders did not attend camp this year, but they do in the gymn every day at 1 and Thursdays.

Our new book includes more adventures and premiums along with a pullet on which we carry our mascot at the ball games," states Ogle.

"Some of us are going to try to go with basketball team Florida and we are trying to arrange so that there are at least three cheerleaders at every game," says Ogle. "We are unique because not very many people know about us, but we would like to wish all the students good luck this year," comments Ogle.

Ogle is majoring in real estate and plans to attend East Central University in the fall.

Wilson handles center chores

Using power and strength, Sophomore Curtis Wilson anchors the middle of the Norse line. Wilson's responsibilities are to get the ball to the quarterback and to make the blocking assignments," said Wilson. "I've been putting in practice on snapping the ball to the quarterback, so that's been added.

Last year, Wilson was the snapper on punts and field goals as a freshman. This season, he starts at center as well as being the snapper on both punts and field goals. He takes a combination of both accuracy and a fast snap to make a good deep snap. If you don't, you're don't make a fast snap the kick will be blocked," Wilson said.

"Wilson's best ability is his overall quickness. He's able to make a good snap on the quarterback and then make a good block," said Offensive Line Coach John Kurtz.

"My hardest jobs are to cut the linemen and block the noseguard when he's standing. We double-team the nose-guard quite a bit. When we run up the middle the center has got to block the noseguard and the guard has to block the linemen for the play to work. Wilson is my senior. He learned three years in football at Ponce City High School. Wilson has played center since the ninth grade.

"Elkhorn plays a straight 3-4 defense with the nose guard head-up on the center. It's a battle between him and I. If the nose guard doesn't do anything flashy, they just put four on the line and come at us," said Wilson. "I'll know to block when I get up to the line from practicing, added Wilsone.

"I'll be better after this season to go to another college. I want to be a major college to play football. If I play up to my potential, I should get a scholarship somewhere," concluded Wilson.

"We've made a commitment to schedule the best junior college teams that we can," said Golden Norse basketball coach Larry Gipson concerning the upcoming 1985-86 season.

Entering his fourth year at the Golden Norse helm, Gipson has compiled a 46-25 overall record. Last year the Norsemen finished 15-11 on the season and fourth in the Eastern Division of the Bi-State Conference with a 6-6 record.

"Our schedule features some of the strongest teams from Kansas, Nebraska, Arkansas as well as Oklahoma. Our goal is to play as many teams that consistently appear in the nation's top 10 junior college teams every year," said Gipson.

"People in Mary want to see the best junior college teams and we feel obliged to give them a very competitive schedule. Not only will we have several quality teams, but also, well have at least 12 of the top 50 junior college basketball players in the nation," added Gipson.

Three games on the road against Coffeyville, Northern and Allen County, open the schedule in November. The Norse open the home portion of the schedule as part of the season-opener, Saturday, Nov. 16. The Norse football squad will entertain Chico State, 2 p.m. before the Norse open the home schedule at 6 p.m.

The Norsemen will play host to Tifton, Mo., Rogers State Fair, Mo., in the annual North Classic, Nov. 22-23. The Norsemen will travel to Sedalia, Mo., Nov. 29-31, for the annual State Fair Community College Classic. Hutchinson, Kan., Missouri, Mo., State, Fair and NEV will compete in the round-robin competition.

Competition in the Eastern Division of the Bi-State Conference will start Jan. 16, as the Norsemen travel to Rogers State at Claremore.

The entire NEO schedule is as follows:

November 11 at Coffeyville; 13 at Northeastern; 15 at Allen County; 28 at Combs City Fair Classic.

December 2 St. Gregory's; 5 Seminole; 9 Coffeyville; 14 Allen County.

January 10-11 at Tifton Classic; 18 Rogers State; 25 Seminole; 20 at Reserve; 31 Conners State; 27 at Carl

Lewis leads Norsemen past Vols

Ladies schedule reflects challenge

Fisher freshman Shell Henry increased the Golden Norse lead with a 20-yard touchdown run midway through the second quarter. Henry's run capped an 80-yard drive in six plays with 8:30 left before halftime. "We played well on offense in the first half," said Wolfe. "We were able to eliminate some of the mistakes that bothered us last week in our game.""But we lost our concentration on defense, the second half and started fumbling and making mistakes that caused us to fall short," added Wolfe.

The Sneed-Lewis combination clicked for the Norse as the Norse used their fullback, wide receiver and quarterback to pass for 37 yards and one touchdown. The Big Eight's leading pass catchers, senior fullback Greg Rains, had 130 yards in 13 catches, and quarterback Jeff Hargis, who completed all 19 of his passes for 164 yards and two touchdowns. Golden Norse defense Vols' Hargis for a minus-56 yards. Defensive end Earl Slade made seven unassisted tackles and one assist to lead the Norsemen. Linebacker James Con made three solo tackles with two sacks for a minus-13 yards. Defensive tackle Eric Hake made two tackles, one assist and two sacks for minus 18 yards.
