“Ripper,” directed by the same man who brought us the now classic television film, “Blood in Blood Out.” The film is a tale of a modern “Jack the Ripper” story, set in London in the 1880s. The plot centers around a group of women who team up to solve the mystery of the Ripper. The central character, a young and determined woman, is played by a talented actress, who brings depth and emotion to her role. The film is a well-crafted thriller, filled with tension and suspense, and offers a fascinating look at the world of Victorian London.

The cinematography is excellent, especially the scenes in the streets of London. The actors are all well-chosen, and they bring their characters to life in a way that makes the audience care about them. Overall, “Ripper” is a well-made film that will keep you on the edge of your seat.

Dear Editor:

Take heart, NSEO future sophomores, if you hope to be in the 1984-85 NSEO Annual Talent Show, the key is to practice, practice, practice! Many parents come to see their sons and daughters perform last night and, like many others, were disgusted by ignorant audience behavior. These performances did NSEO a great disservice and are to be condemned for their courage and talents. They deserve a good audience who have come to appreciate them. Let notice be served to those who would interrupt and spoil a lovely evening that it won’t be allowed to happen again next year.

Oscar winners

by Kevin Edwards

The Oscars are over and won, and I must say that I was very pleased with my prediction of 1984’s Oscar winners. The first film that comes to mind is “The Color Purple,” directed by Steven Spielberg. It was the only film in this year’s Academy Award contest that I was able to see. The film was nominated for Best Picture, Best Director, Best Actor, and Best Actress. The film was a huge success at the box office, and it is now available on VHS. I highly recommend it to anyone who enjoys good films.

The second film that comes to mind is “Dances with Wolves,” directed by Kevin Costner. This film was a huge success at the box office, and it was nominated for Best Picture, Best Director, Best Actor, and Best Actress. The film was directed by Kevin Costner, who also starred in the film. The film is about a Civil War veteran who returns to the West to make his fortune. The film is a beautiful depiction of the American West, and it is a must-see for anyone who loves Westerns.

The third film that comes to mind is “The French Connection,” directed by Martin Scorsese. This film was a huge success at the box office, and it was nominated for Best Picture, Best Director, Best Actor, and Best Actress. The film is about a New York City police officer who is assigned to investigate a drug ring. The film is a thrilling depiction of the New York City police force, and it is a must-see for anyone who loves crime dramas.

And the fourth film that comes to mind is “Amadeus,” directed by Miloš Forman. This film was a huge success at the box office, and it was nominated for Best Picture, Best Director, Best Actor, and Best Actress. The film is about the life of Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart, one of the greatest composers of all time. The film is a beautiful depiction of Mozart’s life, and it is a must-see for anyone who loves classical music.
