Suspects arrested in automobile fire

William Reid and Leon Jenkins were both served with warrants for their arrest Tuesday afternoon after setting fire to Kroot White's car.

Reid's warrant was for arson and Jenkins's warrant also is for malicious injury to property.

While a witness from Pratt parked her car behind Couts Hall on the east side the night before, she saw something happen to her car. She left it parked in the Vann Hall parking lot.

Reid and Jenkins obstructed the car early Monday morning. Reid cut a hole in the right tire of White's 1900 Ford and Smokie Jenkins opened both of the doors. At this time both assailants entered the car. At this time they set the car on fire and shut the doors.

"We feel that it is important that students know how and where crimes happen, so students can be aware of what is going on around them," said Mike Watson, director of campus security.

It is important for students to know what theses are after Campus Darwin is interested in anything that is going on around them.

Cash, checks, and credit cards are some of the main thefts. They especially like to steal money because it is easy to get rid of the evidence.

Students who lose books, find them, and leave them in the library.

Books are also a source of easy cash. Tape decks, television, and compact disc players are popular stolen items. Because they can be easily sold for cash.

Also remember that some theses steal school paper.

Financial aid filing period crucial for funding next year

Dear Editor,

I would first like to clarify a misprint in last week’s paper. The area I was referring to is the north end of the football field. The east side of the street, next to the Health Science building has not been affected. Both areas could stand some sort of improvement.

A person much wiser than I once told me “Know where you stand and trust who you know.” It is obvious that there is a considerable amount of unlocked doors in the residence halls.

Letter

Whether you are leaving your room unlocked while you walk downtown to the mall, or you let someone borrow your key, or your roommate has a party while you are gone, you are inviting the opportunity for thieves. Remember, “Every spark that you don’t get ripped off.”

Keep your doors locked. Even if it’s not a $50 note and a stab on the wall from the administrative building. Admittedly, some have been expelled. But what about the victims?

Rape, burglary, arson, larceny, extortion, robbery, assault and battery, are all crimes of the same degree. NEC can no longer tolerate the escalating crime rate on campus.

I urge cooperation with the Campus Security Department in focusing on all people perpetrating serious crimes on campus. After all, it could be your own family you are protecting or your best friend who needs help in a crisis.

Although the campus is safer, one should be more cautious and more security. How about an armed guard in each dorm from 9 p.m. to 7 a.m.? Maybe even on each floor.

Personally, I would hate to see that happen. The students themselves must make the decision to change.

Student should remember their purpose here, namely to go to school. This should be one of the most memorable periods of one’s life. It is a shame to see it marred by someone’s thoughtlessness in desecration and wanton action.

Sincerely,
Richard Shaw

The livestock judging team wrapped up the 1992-93 season with a record-setting 10th place overall in the national championships. The team, coached by Larry Douglas, was represented by four members: Jamie Grosshanel, a sophomore from Temple; Kevin Lee, a freshman from Brownfield; and Sue Johnson and Jeff Smith, both seniors.

"This is our best season ever," said Douglas. "We had a very strong team this year." The team's top finish was a third place in the national finals, held in San Antonio, Texas.

Abortion remains a difficult issue

By Deanna Mara

As a woman there are some things that are difficult to talk about, but there is one serious crisis that women go through that may be almost impossible to discuss: abortion.

Religion has played the most prominent addition against abortion,” said Adema Heling, coordinator of the college counseling center. “It is a natural instinct to protect newborns, no matter if it is animal or human,” said Heling. “Where ever there is a strong opposition against something there is a strong opposing force. I do not think a woman will ever realize the problem must be discussed with persons who can provide a non-judgmental view. An organization such as the Twelve-Day Plan would provide help and care and the needed support group,” said Heling.

The club deals with all aspects of the problems women face, not just the abortion issue. Being able to recognize that they have made the right decision for themselves and the significant others in their lives can be a very therapeutic experience,” said Heling.

Every case of abortion is different. Each case is unique even if the results are the same. Often the relationship with the male can be the determining factor in a woman’s emotional way of thinking. The pro-life movement has been a leading voice in the debate over abortion. It is entirely the right of a woman to have an abortion. Even when a woman has had an abortion, she and the male sometimes reject them afterward.”

After an abortion, women may have problems dealing with men and especially in a sexual relationship with another partner. No doubt, the relationship with the past one of the past issues or relationships,” said Heling. “Every time a woman is pregnant, she remembers the probability of another pregnancy,” said Heling.

Broadcasting program takes to the air

By Deanna Mara

The broadcasting program is taking on a new format and new responsibilities as the broadcast deadline creeps up on them. Chris Willard is the television production instructor. He has been an instructor at the college for three years.

“This is the best and biggest schedule we have ever had,” said Willard. “The students have worked hard and diligently to bring the viewer the new ideas and programs.”

There are 15 different broadcasts offered. They will begin Monday on channel 47 on the cable system.

There are only three programs that will be reconstructed out of last year’s schedule. They were chosen to continue for their format and importance.

The three programs are: NEO Focus, student video production and soap operas.

“To inform the students of the events of the day,” said Willard. “The students have the ability to learn about the NEO campus and surrounding areas,” said Willard.

“We have a lot of fun and excitement shows this season,” said Willard. “Pump up the Volume is a new dance show hosted by Toby Ford and a freshman from Butler. The show features dancers,.”

The biggest obstacle to the show is getting the audience. Willard is involved in promoting the show and has been creating promotional materials for the show. The show is Monday at 5 p.m. in the TV studio,” said Ford.

“Short Videos Festival is a look at student video works,” said Willard. “Student Video Show highlights video projects from the television production classes.”

“Sugar and Spice: A History of Women’s Rights” is on the schedule. “This is a documentary film that tells the history of women’s rights,” said Willard.

“Nose Sports,” is a look at the athletes. “All of the material is written and directed by NEO Students.”

“The Sports is a look at the athletes. “A look at the athletes,” said Willard. “We try to keep up with the schedule. Nose Sports are a look at the athletes. “A look at the athletes.”
